

From: ash
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/16/01 8:46pm
Subject: MS, still being bullies.

I am a college student and a want-to-be-programmer and believe the MS is a harsh monopoly. Granted, in the beginig they were a great aspiring company, but now they stomp out everyone to gain more market share. For instance, they have stomped out a lot of financial software by pushing their own. They have, obviously, taken the browser and added things to the HTML standard to make other (standard) browsers have problems. They have started .NET and Hailstorm which pretty much gives them a good hold on the people much like a Orwellian (sp?) government might. My point is they are starting to get out of hand and are killing off other great inventors by stomping out creativity with these malicious buisness practices.

Thank you for your time,
Ash

=====

EASY and FREE access to your email anywhere: <http://Mailreader.com/>

=====